What if you were Earth?

Have you ever tried changing characters with Earth? What if it was Earth's turn to start throwing garbage at you all the time, and all you can drink is polluted water. That wouldn't be something anybody wants to try.

Since 21st century, people have started to notice these environmental problems, and are finding ways to solve these critical problems. After all these years, air pollution and water pollution are starting to change a lot better, but what about those undigestable plastic garbages? Earth is only this big, but population over the world is getting higher and higher, and all those garbage we produce is increasing in a very distinguished way. Well, if the trash can't be resorbed by Earth, what can we do? For the space technology to be promoting these years, I think that it might be a great idea for countries in all the world to team up, and start getting those trashes into outer-space! Just like a movie, where Wall-e squeezes those junk into junk cubes, in this way, we can get the best efficiency from every time we space travel and dump these junk far far away. It might cost us a lot of money from doing this, but we can't buy Mother Earth with money!

Keeping Earth clean is a responsibility for everyone that lives on it, if we can't save it, who will? Since these issues are being talked about lately, it should really be done from everyone, not just a few groups that are making effort and others just keep producing trash. There is a way that every time you want to litter trash on the ground, just think if you'll like someone to just throw garbage at you for no reason. Think twice before doing things that will hurt Earth, and the place we live in won't ever fall!
