Global issue - landfill crisis

Nowadays, the landfill crisis has become more and more serious because of human activities. It is ^{such} an important issue and crisis to creatures lives in the earth that we should take it serious. I have seen many creative ways to turn obsolete things into new things from videos on the Internet. I have seen a person use an amazing machine to turn plastic bottles into plastic ropes. The ^{idea} is really cool and the ropes are stronger than any other ropes and they can be reused many times. Some people also make their new furniture by themselves. They took the obsolete wooden furniture from others and made it more stronger. After they repainted it with the colors they like and put some decorations on it, they got the new furniture that was the only one in the world. What's more, some people also use their old clothes to make new clothes for themselves or for their pets. One of them was a girl, she use an underwear which the color she didn't like to make her swimming suit, it looked really wonderful that no one would know it once was an underwear. Actually, there are many interesting and creative ways to turn something obsolete into things that are useful in our daily lives only if we use our heart to observe things around us.

The landfill crisis is really an important issue because it not only matters to one person but to whole world. If we couldn't come up with the solution, the crisis would become more and more serious. People would have to find more places to put the garbage, but we are running out of places. Maybe one day our hometown might also become a place to put the garbage, and I believe that nobody would like it. Besides, the garbage we produce might pollute the water sources and the land. It would be very terrible because what we eat, what we drink would be unsafe one day. Maybe one day the disasters appeared in the fiction movies wouldn't only be the imagination anymore.

To reduce the crisis from becoming more serious, everyone has the responsibilities to the crisis. Doing the recycle and reducing the amount of garbage we create a day are the simple things we can do in our daily lives. The effect of it seem to be very small when there is only a person doing it, but when the whole world do it together, the effect of it can be very huge. Remember, we only have one Earth, to make our future brighter, let's fight for it together.
